

CHANGING YOUR HSA CONTRIBUTIONS MID-YEAR

What you need to know and what you'll need to do

There are many reasons your eligibility to make contributions to your Health Savings Account (HSA) can change at certain points during the year. Maybe:

- › You added or dropped HSA-qualified health plan coverage because you started a new job or enrolled in Medicare.
- › You work for an employer who renews benefits mid-year.

As a result, you may need to prorate your HSA contribution limit.

Prorating contribution limits

HSA contribution limits are determined on a calendar/tax-year basis.¹ IRS rules state that contribution limits must generally be prorated by the number of months you are eligible to contribute to an HSA. Your eligibility² is based on your coverage status on the first day of the month.

To calculate your personal contribution limit:³

1. Take the total annual contribution limit based on individual or family coverage type (limits listed below).
2. Divide that amount by 12.
3. Multiply it by the number of months that you qualify that year.

Example:

You were eligible to contribute to your HSA for four months this year. Your personal contribution limit would be:

$$$3,450 \div 12 \times 4 = $1,150$$

(Based on 2018 individual contribution limits)

Prorated contribution limits for 2018

Number of months	Individual	Family
12	$3,450	$6,900
11	$3,163	$6,325
10	$2,875	$5,750
9	$2,588	$5,175
8	$2,300	$4,600
7	$2,013	$4,025
6	$1,725	$3,450
5	$1,438	$2,875
4	$1,150	$2,300
3	$863	$1,725
2	$575	$1,150
1	$288	$575

Using the last month rule

If you are eligible to contribute to an HSA on the first day of the last month of your tax year (that's December 1 for most taxpayers), you are considered eligible for the entire year, provided you stay enrolled in an HSA-qualified health plan through December 31st of the following year.⁴

Switching coverage types mid-year

You may also be able to apply the last month rule if you change coverage mid-year.

Example:

You changed coverage from individual to family on July 1.

You can contribute the full-family maximum amount that year, as long as you maintain family coverage from December 1 through December 31st of the following year.

Example:

You changed coverage from family coverage to individual coverage on July 1.

You can contribute more than the individual maximum contribution but less than the family maximum contribution.

To calculate your contribution limit you would:

1. Take the number of months you'll have individual coverage multiplied by the total annual individual contribution limit divided by 12.
2. Add that amount to the number of months you'll have family coverage multiplied by the total annual family contribution limit divided by 12.

$$(6 \times $288) + (6 \times $575) = $5,178$$

(Based on 2018 individual and family contribution limits)

Catch-up contributions for age 55 and up

Catch-up contributions are also subject to the proration and last-month rules. In general, and unless the last-month rule applies, an individual must be eligible for 12 months to contribute the total annual catch-up contribution ($1,000).

To calculate the catch-up contribution limit:

1. Take the total available catch-up contribution amount ($1,000).
2. Divide that amount by 12.
3. Multiply it by the number of months that you qualify that year.

Example:

You enrolled in Medicare on July 1 and are no longer eligible to contribute to your HSA. Here's how you would calculate your catch-up contribution:

$$$1,000 \div 12 \times 6 = $500$$

Contributed too much?

If you've contributed too much to your HSA, you'll have until the tax deadline (generally April 15) of the following year to request what is called "an excess contribution distribution."

The rules described in this document may be applied differently if the tax year is not the calendar year (e.g., if it is the fiscal year).

2. Contact your health plan or HR benefits representative if you have questions on whether your health coverage is HSA-qualified. Other HSA eligibility criteria apply, including that you cannot be enrolled in Medicare, cannot be covered by a health plan that is not an HSA-qualified plan (with limited exceptions), cannot have received VA medical benefits in the past three months, and cannot be eligible to be claimed as a dependent on someone else's tax return.

3. Your personal contribution limit may be lower than Internal Revenue Code maximums. Individuals are responsible for calculating and monitoring their contribution.

4. If you fail to satisfy the last month rule, income and penalty taxes may apply.
